

Christ Redeemer Fellowship moves to temporary worship space

Christ Redeemer Fellowship of Granite Shoals, Texas, has moved their worship services to a temporary home in the local Community Center. They have been meeting in a former office building, but the owner wanted to use the building for other purposes. The church has acquired five acres on the main road through the area, and will soon be working on plans for a new building. Jackie English is pastor of the Fellowship.